

Exciting news for Clemson University!

We will be hosting the 6th Global Service Learning Summit on November 3-5, 2019. This collaborative effort between the CU Office of Global Engagement and GlobalSI Network will provide opportunities to share best practices for sustainable community-campus partnerships with colleagues from across the nation and the Global South. Mark your calendars for now. More details will be forthcoming in the next few weeks.

Faculty, graduate students, and community partners are encouraged to submit abstracts for discursive sessions, case studies, and posters. Find all conferences themes and submission guidelines HERE. The online submission portal is now operational. More information will be available soon.

Share with your partners that registration scholarships for community partners are available to incentivize participation from community-campus partnerships. More details

We are very excited to host this important conference. Please share with your colleagues within Clemson University as well as outside institutions.
